To Buy or Sell a Used Car

The price of new cars has made keeping the old one look pretty good.

A few repairs (which are also expensive) and a new paint job to give the family transportation another year or two is the way of life for many citizens nowadays.

And eventually, instead of a new car, the owner may opt for a used one—one that has a couple of years on it but is 5 or more years younger than the one now owned. Frequently the newly acquired vehicle is purchased from a private individual and the need to sell the old jalopy arises. Now both seller and buyer need guidelines. So here they are.

If you think that all you have to do is sign the pink slip and give it to be buyer, think again. If you and the owner don't go through the proper procedure of transferring ownership of the vehicle, you could get stuck with violation fines incurred by the new owner or face more serious charges if the new owner is involved in a criminal activity (such as hit and run) while using your car.

To protect yourself when you sell a vehicle, follow this simple procedure:

—Fill out a Notice of Transfer form (available at any DMV Office), and return it to the Department of Motor Vehicles. You must list the vehicle license number, make, identification number, the odometer reading at the time of the sale, and the new owners name and address. Jot down that information before relinquishing the car and documents to the new owner. If you fail to file this notice with DMV, you will be considered to be the responsible registered owner of the vehicle until the new owner has it transferred.

—Sign the front side of the pink slip on line "1" and give it, the current registration card and a set of keys to the new owner.

Now the transfer process begins for the buyer. Within 10 days he must:

—Complete the reverse side of the pink slip and take it to the local DMV office with the registration card and smog control "Certificate of Compliance". This Certificate, which is valid for 120 days, serves as proof that the vehicle meets smog control requirements for that area. DMV will not transfer registration to the new owner without this Certificate.

—Pay a $3 transfer fee, and a 6 percent use tax fee on the purchase price of the vehicle.

To establish the use tax fee, the new owner will be required to fill out a Certification of Purchase price stating the price paid for the vehicle and the name and address of the seller. But beware of fbs: This form is signed under penalty of perjury, and if the price you quote seems unreasonably low, DMV can send the certificate to the Board of Equalization, who investigates the matter to insure the price is accurate.

A booklet, "Registration Handbook" which explains exceptions and procedures is available at any DMV field office.

... And in this corner, Dr. Sam

Those who have had the feeling of frustration when they come to cross purposes with the Internal Revenue Service will be happy to learn that they now have a formidable champion in their corner.

He is Dr. Sam Hayakawa, the U.S. Senator of California. Not only was he effective in a recent contact with the Internal Revenue Service but he proudly proclaims his success in the confrontation and "hundreds of others."

Such are the contents of a communication proudly disseminated last week by the Senator. It reads:

"Senator Hayakawa's offices handle hundreds of cases involving income tax returns which have been delayed in the bureaucratic maze. The following is a letter recently received from a constituent who was aided in receiving his long-overdue refund:

"Dear Senator Hayakawa,

"We thank you very much for interceding on our behalf and thus prompting the IRS to act on our 1977 return, which was long overdue. We have received our refund. We understand that your efforts were very instrumental in getting action on this matter; it was so terribly fouled up that no one knows when it would have been cleared up otherwise.

"We do regret having found it necessary to call on your office for this problem. These are not the reasons for which we elect public officials. Perhaps someday, the various bureaucratic agencies will be more directly responsive to us, and such a need will not exist.

"Again, thanks much, and we wish you the best for broader endeavors of your office."

Now, when IRS catches you, all you have to do is tell Dr. Sam. It's a comforting feeling.

IRS Says Child Care Costs Must be Proven

The Internal Revenue Service reminds working parents who plan to claim the credit for child care expenses that they will be required to furnish the name, address and Social Security Number or Employer Identification Number, of their babysitter on their 1978 federal income tax return.

In addition, providers of child or dependent care services must report amounts they receive, as income on their federal tax returns. According to Donald L. Stewart, Chief of the Examination Division of Southern California, the IRS is increasing its efforts to insure that the income reported is consistent with amounts claimed by parents who take the child care credit.

Stewart said that parents who claim the child care credit must furnish identifying information about the child care provider and the amount paid for their services on IRS Form 2441, "Credit for Child and Dependent Care Expenses."

"Parents who pay for child care in order to work are eligible to claim credit for 20 percent of their actual child care expenses. The maximum credit is $400 for one child and $800 for two or more children," Stewart said.

Stewart added that the credit can be claimed by all taxpayers, regardless of income, and includes not only the workday care of children but also certain other eligible dependents.

L.G. CITY OK'S $204,000 In Projects

Lemon Grove's City Council Tuesday night began hammering away at a stack of projects that have been accumulating since incorporation was approved a year and a half ago.

Federal revenue sharing funds of $204,000, due the city before July 1, simplified the task of financing them.

Councilmen tossed around spending sums as if money was going out of style—as indeed it would if the funds are not in use by deadlines in the coming year.

Considered were a wide range of projects but in the end it was safety and recreation which took priority.

For example, the Little League organization which has developed and operated programs at the park in Monterey Heights for more than 20 years, attending the meeting in a body, made a strong plea for aid—and got it.

Ben Sedlikas, of 7591 Deville ct., L.G. Little League president, said that while thousands of Lemon Grove youngsters have been brought into organized play during the years since the L.G. ball park was first acquired, it had been impossible for the group to finance some projects to reduce hazards and deterioration of the facility.

He noted that an auto had once run over a high dirt bank and lodged within feet of the players' dugout—an earthen bank which washes mud onto the field during rainstorms.

Joseph K. Hromada, $408 Blossom Hills ln., the team's treasurer, said the organization had spent $32,000 of which 27% went for improvements. Income was $27,000. That didn't include the many hours parents contributed in hard labor, he said.

Steve Kerner, team coach, 2311 Loma dr., told how some $20,000 worth of labor and grading services had been acquired at a cost of less than $4,000—with parents doing much of the work.

Randy Clark, 3194 Massachusetts ave., who had, himself, played Little League ball on the field 20 years ago where he now manages the team, reminded council of the necessity for organized recreation for youngsters.

Mayor Jim Dorman needed no reminding. "Recreational facilities have been sadly neglected here. We don't have enough." He was immediately backed by Councilman Dale Bailey who urged council to "do something now. We have the funds and we have the need. We promised voters we would provide more than they had been getting. Let's meet our commitments."

Councilman Dell Lake asked for a list of priorities which City Manager Jack Shelver said would be provided through his office on a request-by-request basis. Councilman Jack Doherty favored the appropriation but noted that safety for youngsters was also important and later took a strong stand on sidewalks on Massachusetts.

The Little League organization, which had requested $14,000 left with a commitment of $35,000.

The ball park is on city-owned land. A crash wall, a retaining wall, fences and drainage will take much of the money but parents will be supplying labor where possible.

During the discussion, Jo Ann Gibbles, 1709 El Prado, asked council to delete $20,000 for tennis courts and $20,000 for Broadway center island landscaping and use the funds for street lighting. Dick Whitmore, 8215 Alton dr., asked that funds be used to acquire mini-parks.

Other places where sharing funds were designated:

Replacing substandard fire hydrants, $25,000

Replacing budget deficit on street lighting, $13,600

Sidewalks on Massachusetts, Broadway to Mt. Vernon, $25,000

Parking and sidewalks, Main from North to Church, $60,000

Landscaping Broadway center islands, North at College to Main st., $20,000.

The balance of $6,000 will go into the contingency fund.

The projects were chosen from a list developed at a public meeting several weeks ago.

In other business, James Hitt was granted relief from installing a street light in front of his newly acquired property at 7644 Broadway. He noted that it would cost him approximately $2,400 for the installation at a time when street lights are being turned off to conserve energy. The installation order was waived on condition that he sign a covenant not to oppose the formation of a lighting district, if and when it is proposed.

Council approved a resolution authorizing Mayor Dorman to sign a solid-waste franchise agreement with Thomas Disposal (EDCO). George Bagdasarian, of San Diego, operator of the S.D. Refuse Co., made a strong plea for a franchise. He argued that open competition, consistent with America's free enterprise system, has produced lower rates in other communities. He said that he had a petition signed by many people urging that his firm be franchised in Lemon Grove.

He said the petition signers strongly supported his position. He admitted that none were present at the hearing Tuesday, however.

Council was told that Bagdasarian's representative was less than candid in statements to those asked to sign the petition. It was also reported that he did not file financial and experience information requested by the city manager.

It was also reported that Bagdasarian's references did not check out.

Council approved Thomas and Son (EDCO).

Council confirmed the nomination of Ruth Pfister as a City Planning Commissioner. She replaces Joe Hobbs, who has left the community.

Mayor Dorman asked that the next council meeting be held on Tuesday, December 5 at which time the Block Grant hearing will be conducted. The meeting was moved a day because 3 councilmen could not be present on the regular Monday.

Abuse Program Seeks Trainers

San Diego County's Division of Substance Abuse has announced it is seeking proposals from organizations that are interested in teaching parenting skills to counselors and other county personnel who work with drug abuse family members.

The county is specifically looking for bidders who can submit proposals offering specific trainer development plans, and skills models for use with drug-abusing families. Demonstrated fiscal and management capabilities will also be considered.

Approximately $50,000 is available for the program. Fully completed proposals are due to the Division of Drug Programs' office by 5 p.m., Wednesday, December 3.

Smoking Ban Still in Effect In Many Places

The City of San Diego's smoking regulations, adopted in 1974, remain in effect despite the failure recently of the statewide no-smoking initiative (Prop. 5).

Calls received by the City's Citizens Assistance and Information (CAI) Depts. recently indicate that the outcome of the election on the initiative has created confusion on the part of some businesses and citizens.

San Diego's No-Smoking Ordinance prohibits smoking in food markets, theaters, pharmacies, health-care facilities, buses, public meeting rooms, public elevators and rest rooms, and indoor service lines and service counters. The Ordinance also requires that signs be posted advising the public where smoking is not allowed, especially in food markets.

Violations are infractions punishable by fines of $10 to $100. But since the City lacks the capability of stringent enforcement of the Ordinance, reliance has been placed on a public awareness and voluntary compliance, according to George Story, Director of CAI.

"The public has been very cooperative in complying with the Ordinance voluntarily," Story said. "It is important that the public recognize that the Ordinance is still in effect in the City despite the defeat of Proposition 5."

The City also is reminding food markets that the State Legislature in 1977, enacted a statewide prohibition on smoking in retail food establishments.

Story said, "A high percentage of complaints alleging violation of the City's smoking restrictions originate from food markets."

The City of Lemon Grove received $92,500 in sales tax funds as its share of the November allocation according to Iris Sankey, member, State Board of Equalization.

For comparison, Coronado got $45,000, Imperial Beach $27,000, and San Marcos, $90,000.

Kids Eat More, Waste Less In School Lunch Experiment

At Spring Valley Junior High student participation in the lunch program has increased more than 200 percent, according to the California School Food Services Association (CSFSA).

An innovative approach called the combo lunch, allows students to mix and match their meals from a choice of 3 entrees augmented by milk, bread and a variety of fruits and vegetables.

Mary Samuel Clement, director of school food service for the La Mesa-Spring Valley School District, says "Plate waste has turned around 100 percent. If kids get to choose their own meal, they will eat it, not waste it."

The program, which has been in effect in the 4 junior high schools in the district since last March, has been so successful it is being duplicated in a neighboring district this Fall, according to Clement.

If dessert seems conspicuous by its absence, it's because "we're teaching the students to substitute granola bars, fruit and fruit juice for dessert," Clement said.

"In fact, we serve nothing that could be considered junk food such as candy, potato chips or soft drinks," she added. "And they don't seem to mind at all."

Rhodes, who is retiring from the Van Deerlin staff, will become an independent political consultant, with an initial contract to coordinate the re-election campaigns of Van Deerlin, State Sen. James R. Mills and Assemblymen Wadde P. Deddeh and Peter Chacon.

Akerstein has been with Van Deerlin 9 years, serving as a research assistant and deputy field representative. Previously he was at various times an editor, aircraft parts inspector, property assessor and executive director of the San Diego County Democratic Central Committee.

Rhodes joined Van Deerlin following 20 years in the Navy. He has been field representative since 1963.

Drink Control Aid Offered

"Get Through the Holidays Alive" kits with information and suggestions on how to deal with the holiday season and social drinking are available from the National Council on Alcoholism.

"Most people are not aware of the responsibility they assume when they serve alcoholic beverages to their guests," Sandra Andrews, NCA's executive director, said. "If a guest or employee leaves your residence or place of business after having too much to drink and is involved in an accident on the way home, you are financially liable."

The California law making hosts responsible will remain in effect until January 1, at which time the financial responsibility will be eliminated but the misdemeanor offense of serving someone who is obviously intoxicated more alcohol will still be in effect.

The kits contain posters, non-drinker's drink book and a bumper sticker which reads "Glad We're Both Sober."

The kits are $1 each from the NCA office at 801 Sixth avenue. Phone is 234-7381.

There's An Answer!

by Norman Vincent Peale and Ruth Stafford Peale

ALWAYS WANTS MORE

Q. I spend at least every other evening with my 77-year-old mother. My sister spends part of every weekday with her. But she wants more. Mother made us her whole life. I know and appreciate what she had done. But having seven children of my own and nine grandchildren, sometimes I like to stay home. When my sister and I even go for a walk we feel guilty. Can you give us advice to help us and her too?

A. When people become aged they sometimes return, to a degree at least, to childhood and have to be treated as such.

Your mother has no right at all to be so demanding. But, don't argue with her. Go to see her on a reasonable basis. And above all, never feel guilty when you don't go. There is nothing to feel guilty about.

Actually, if you spend more time with your grandchildren you can give your family a more important service.

We are sending you a booklet, WHAT'S YOUR TROUBLE?, which has helped others. Anyone wishing a free copy may write to us at Box 500, Pawling, NY 12564.

SECOND FIDDLE

Q. My husband likes to come and go. When he comes back we shouldn't ask him where he's been. He has been unfaithful and unchristian. After trying for 31 years I'm tired of being second fiddle. All his ways of living are a bad thing for the children. We're now separated. Should I get a divorce?

A. No husband has any right to demand of a wife that she should not know where he has been.

If he has been unfaithful, and you are sure of your facts, you are not called upon to live with him unless he is willing to change and you are willing to give him another chance.

SON ALWAYS LATE

Q. Our family cannot seem to get our son out of the house on time, for anything he's going to. He is a very good man in every way, but his problem is getting out on time for work. First we figured he wasn't getting enough rest, but even when he gets to bed earlier he's usually late getting out the door. When we wake him early he leaves at the same old time. Many times he was late as a young man in school. Would hypnosis help him or would treatment of another type be more positive?

A. It would appear that your son is unsystemized and disorganized. But this failing is curable. He ought to be able to learn organized self-management on his own, if he were motivated to do so.

Nagging him on this score is not likely to succeed. Nor do we suggest that hypnosis is necessary.

Stop treating your son like a child. Don't take any responsibility for his late starts, and he will better learn to be on his own.

We suggest trying to get him to read some motivational books, such as SUCCESS THROUGH A POSITIVE MENTAL ATTITUDE by W. Clement Stone. Such reading may perhaps awaken him to the fact that sluggishness will never lead him to success, only to failure.

If there is something you would like to ask Dr. and Mrs. Peale to discuss in this column, write to them in care of Box 500, Pawling, NY 12564. If you would like to talk directly with a Prayer Partner, call Prayer Line (212) 481-1050. Reduced long-distance rates are in effect nights and weekends.

Grossmont Hospital Opens New Pediatrics Facility

A new 23-bed pediatrics unit is open and available for patients at Grossmont Hospital announced Don Dahlgren, administrator.

During its construction, the young patients had been sharing a floor with adult patients. The old pediatrics unit was taken out of service when remodeling and construction started nearly 2 years ago.

"The new child-oriented facility is designed to eliminate fears and enable the youngsters to feel more at home", said Harriett Huddle, nursing administrator. A carpeted space-age playroom, cheerful wallpaper and decor, and lots of windows help achieve these objectives. Constant care observation rooms are also among the improvements.

"A spacious lounge is available nearby for waiting parents and families. In keeping with Grossmont's philosophy of encouraging family involvement in health care, parents are now permitted to visit pediatric patients at any time and stay as long as they wish (providing it does not interfere with the patient's treatment.)

"Plans for the future include orienting support departments, such as x-ray and laboratory, to providing pediatric tailored service."

Dahlgren added that prior to the construction, the hospital was averaging 20 pediatric patients a day. This number dropped considerably during the inconvenience of remodeling.

Adult tours of the unit will be provided upon request to the Information Services Office.

HOME COOKED This Week's RECIPE Arista of Pork

The arista is a roasted loin of pork seasoned with rosemary and garlic. In the fifteenth century this dish was served in Florence, Italy to a visiting Greek dignitary who exclaimed, "Aristos!", which, in Greek, means "the best."

This roast is not difficult and its taste is splendid. In Italy it is eaten both hot and cold, so the leftovers make excellent sandwich meat. Serve with beans and mashed potatoes (to sop up the juices) and a good Italian Chianti or a California zinfandel or petite sirah.

Arista of Pork
Degree of difficulty: Moderate
Time: 1/2 hour preparation time, 2 hours cooking time
Servings: 8 to 10
Cost: Moderate
Ingredients:

- 4 to 5 pound boned loin of pork, tied or untied (see instruction)
- 2 tablespoons rosemary leave
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 6 cloves garlic, finely minced
- 1 tablespoon freshly ground pepper
- Preheat oven to 375°.
- In a bowl combine the rosemary, garlic, salt and pepper.
- If you don't mind tying the roast yourself, buy it untied and spread half the rosemary and garlic mixture over the inside, then roll the loin and tie with strong kitchen string at intervals of 1 inch. (Loop the string around one end of the roast and tie tight. Without breaking the string, move an inch and make another tight loop. Repeat this procedure until the whole loin is tied like a salami.)

- If you don't want to tie it yourself, have the butcher tie it as described above. With the point of a sharp knife puncture the pork all over twenty or more times (If you tied the roast yourself make about half as many punctures.) Fill the puncture holes with the rosemary and garlic mixture and sprinkle a bit of it over the roast's outside surfaces.
- Put the olive oil in the bottom of a roasting pan. Place the meat into the pan and put in the center of the preheated oven. Cook for 1 1/2 hours or until the internal temperature of the meat is 170°. Turn the pork once, after about 1 hour of cooking time. (For a particularly brown outside, raise the temperature to 450° for the last 5 or 10 minutes.)
- Remove the pan from the oven and transfer the arista to a platter with its juices. Allow the meat to rest for 10 minutes before slicing. Cut into thin slices and serve.

A Worm With Your Salad

California Lettuce Crop Faces Budworm Disaster

A little worm with a ravenous appetite is chewing away at the soon-to-be-harvested lettuce crop in the Imperial Valley and problems with consumer supply and quality could result if the infestation is not halted, county and industry officials told the Council of California Growers.

The pest, called the tobacco budworm, wreaked havoc last year with the Valley's cotton crop and now has transferred its attention to the 45,000 acres of lettuce fields in the southeastern desert.

"If we lose control of the worm," said Ron Hull, manager of Imperial Valley Vegetable Growers Association, "there will be severe losses to growers, and less availability to the market."

The lettuce harvest will begin next year and continue through March. Imperial Valley is the nation's principal supplier of lettuce in the winter months.

Maritime Academy Applications Open

The California Maritime Academy, specializing in careers in the maritime and related industries, is now accepting applications for the fall term which begins in August. Applicants must be at least 17 but not yet 24 (not yet 27 for veterans); high school graduates or the equivalent; citizens of the United States; have a grade of C or better in 3 years of English, 3 years of math, including algebra I, algebra II, and plane geometry, and 1 year of chemistry or physics, including lab.

Applicants who have not taken the S.A.T. or A.C.T. may do so by consulting with a high school or junior college counselor in their area.

According to Cal Maritime President Joseph P. Rizza, Academy graduates are in demand by the industry for high paying jobs, both at sea and ashore. The 86 graduates in the Class of 1978 had over 120 professional employment offers to choose from with salaries ranging from a low of $14,000 to a projected high exceeding $30,000 per year for the first year of employment.

"To our knowledge there is no other school in the nation that can match the employment record of our graduates in recent years."

Bert Lee's Star on Rise With Marin KO

Bert Lee, who has fought his way to professional boxing main events in a little more than a year, won a unanimous decision over Jose Marin, listed as the junior welterweight champion of Costa Rico, Friday night at the San Diego Coliseum.

Lee, the pride of San Diego's Mt. Empire, was surprisingly sharp with stunning left jabs and overhand rights. He rocked Marin in 2 of the 10 rounds and left no doubt that he wants to be a welterweight leader in S. California.

Marin, whose professional experience showed in his ability to cover himself, was only in trouble once—when a looping right caught him on the side of the head. Marin claims a 64-14 record with 38 KO's. Lee claims a record of 15-1-1.

In a companion 10-rounder heavyweight Juan Baca of Los Angeles came on strong after a lifeless first round and stopped Jim Graham of Long Beach at 2:32 of the 2nd. Graham was decked twice before referee Bobby Valdez stopped the fight.

The fast action bout was the 6-round welterweight scrap which ended at 2:59 of the 5th round when Lalo Hernandez of L.A. put Bernard Graham of S.D. away. Each fighter had his opponent down twice before the final onslaught by Hernandez. Each went down in the 2nd and 3rd rounds. A right hook to the stomach crumpled Graham and he took the full count.

The Coliseum will be closed Friday but professional fights return December 1 when well-known middleweight Ricky Weigel returns. Weigel, a middleweight, who has a 6-in-a-row record, is matched against Tony Adame of Mexico.

Weigel has been fighting in Puerto Rico and Bakersfield since his last appearance here.

The Coliseum brings back the popular women and children free at the December 1 card. Children, 12 and under, will be admitted free but must be escorted by an adult.

Women, solo as with an escort, gain free admission. sa race.

Yankee Ballplayer Is HoC October Star

Without a dissenting vote, Graig Nettles has been elected professional Star of the Month for October by the Hall of Champions Breitbard Athletic Awards Committee.

San Diego High School and San Diego State graduate had been similarly honored on five previous occasions during his spectacular athletic career, most recently in September, 1977. This time he topped the balloting because of the key role he played at third base for New York as the Yankees swept to a 4-2 World Series victory over the L.A. Dodgers.

It was his golden glove performance in the third game which turned the tide for the Yanks, and his defensive wizardry throughout the Series ranks among the finest individual efforts in history. During the regular season he had helped New York capture the pennant not only with his glove but also by batting .276, driving in 93 runs and hitting 27 homers.

Among the amateurs 31-year-old Terry Isbell was named a Star of the Month for becoming the first San Diegoan ever to roll two 800 series, and he did it within a span of 30 days, which may be accepted as an American Bowling Congress record. In league play October 6 at Lomita Bowl he scored 278-234-290-802, and November 2 at Frontier Lanes he registered 247-276-278-801.

TAKE FIVE

by John E. Wirges

Maybe I should have gone to the track. Here I was, walking around lucky and not knowing it. I didn't even have a bet in mind, much less down and covered.

But being happy as a pig in hog heaven is a payoff, too, and with the Naval Academy filling out the pairings of the Holiday Bowl you've gotta color me down-right ebullient.

Forgive an old Navy recruiter's heart, but this one move could be the biggest plus our old fleet town has had since steam put the sailmakers in the sports business.

And it just might light the fire in a number of hard-work, solid-citizen-type of high school youngsters' that really don't believe there is such a place as Annapolis.

They are gonna see, first hand, that a lot of young men and women just a shade or two older than themselves are having a pretty fair go at an excellent education and a lot of growing up.

San Diego, by the way, hosts the largest Naval Academy alumni association anywhere.

There's good reason for it, of course. Most career men (and now women) get a right smart good look at the world and when it comes time to find smug harbor they already know the blessings of our town. Why, those officer types are almost as smart as us old Chiefs. We tend to fill out the town, too.

What higher school housin' most old enlisted sea dogs get is from here and there, about one semester at a time. So, when it comes time to root for a home team, we muster up as shirt-tail alumni for the Naval Academy. It's like Notre Dame and the Catholics.

Brigham Young will be the "official" host team as champions of the Western Athletic Conference and all that. But in a measure of sheer voice, folks at the game are gonna have to believe Navy is at home.

For one thing, you have no idea of what loud is until you've met a Navy Chief. And we learn it from years of turning to for folks who learn to yell like hell at the Army team.

Then there's another factor. Brigham Young is a fine institution, well-supported and closely identified with the Mormon Church. Students and alumni are hard-work, God-fearing, family-types who enjoy a cup of hot chocolate on a cold day, music, togetherness, and roofin' their team home to victory.

Navy folks are much the same, except they're liable to add a drop of rum to the hot chocolate and prepare for the game with some serious drinking and partying for several days before and after the game. For natural alumni that is especially true for games against ranked powers (like Notre Dame), any contest of any kind against Army, most any game against the Air Force and bowl games.

For us adopted alumni, the idea of partying and adding flavor to water and other mixes is one of the talents that we've copied well from our fearless leaders. We may even have outdone them.

The splendor and bright promise of Naval Academy life will be a prime example for high scholars looking uncertainly to the future. They'll have to look a long time for anything better.

And when they see us old ducks of both the natural and adopted alumni having the time of our lives, maybe, just maybe, they'll get the idea of what a "family" the Navy really is to all of us. And that ain't bad, either.

Deborah Main

Debbie Main 'Main Setter' For Aztecs

On the back row of the San Diego State women's volleyball lineup is a 5-9 tanned player with brown hair, blue eyes and a grin as wide as a volleyball itself.

Her mission? To handle the duties of serving, passing and playing defense under the title of "Back Court Specialist."

This specialist, known on the Aztec roster and in her hometown San Jose as Debbie Main, is on of the "oldest" Aztecs, joining the team as a freshman in 1976. She's moved from hitter to her current spot and just loves being a part of the team.

"In high school, I couldn't play defense well," the 20 year old said. "I learned a lot here and I like defense best now."

"When I get back there, I have to go all out. I try to get everything in my reach," Main said.

And her reach is something, on defense and in hitting drills. Going all out is one thing that comes natural to the psychology major. At Leland High in San Jose, Main was All-STGAL League, Valuable Player in the league in 1976 and team MVP in 1974-75. She also racked up league honors in field hockey, basketball and softball.

Although not collegiately participating in all those sports, Main still finds ways to keep busy, such as intramurals, running sprints and three-mile jaunts, and volleyball practice, of course.

Known as the old lady of the tribe, Debbie is looked to for leadership and was awarded Most Inspirational honors on the 1977 Aztec team.

"The squad is a lot closer now than it was two years ago. We're a tight team. It's better to play that way, working together," Main said.

"The skill level of the team is much improved," she continued. "When I was a freshman, we only had seven players and now Joannie Loos and I are the only ones left."

Main, herself, wasn't really enthusiastic about the sport of basketball at first; because, she claims, she didn't play it the right way. But, when she put her mind to it, volleyball became a way of life.

Ozzie Smith Year's Rookie Runner-Up

In the closest Rookie-of-the-year election in the National League since 1968 Padre Shortstop Ozzie Smith finished second to Atlanta's slugging 3rd baseman Bob Horner. The vote count was 12½ for Horner, 8½ for Ozzie and 3 for Pittsburgh Pitcher Don Robinson. In 1968 Cincinnati's Johnny Bench edged New York's Jerry Koosman 10½ to 9½.

Horner was major league baseball's number one selection in the June free agent draft and played in 89 games for the Braves. He batted .266 with 23 homers and 63 rbi.

Ozzie Smith played in 159 of the Padres' 162 games helping the team finish with its best record ever, 84-78. Smith hit .258, leading the league in sacrifice hits with 28. He also finished 4th in stolen bases with 40. However, it was his defense at shortstop that caused people to take notice. Here are a selection of quotes:

Padre Manager Roger Craig: "Ozzie is the best young infielder I've ever seen. Very soon he's going to be one of the best shortstops in baseball, if not the best. As much as I like Bob Horner I must say that Ozzie does a lot more for us. You like a guy who can hit home runs, but Ozzie does it all for us. He's not only the rookie of the year in my book, but also our most valuable player."

Atlanta Manager Bobby Cox: "He's one of the better ones to come along in quite awhile... he's outstanding in the field, just outstanding. I'd have to rate him right up there with Larry Bowa."

Houston Manager Bill Virdon: "He has the hands, quickness, range and speed. If he proves he can hit for any decent of an average at all, he'll be a great one."

Dodger Infielder Davey Lopes: "I yelled rookie-of-the-year to Ozzie before the game started. He had only one year at Walla Walla, but he does things it takes years to learn in this business."

Padre relief ace Rollie Fingers: "One of the keys to my success over the years has been my shortstop" says Fingers, whose low pitches result in lots of ground balls that in Oakland were gobbled up by Bert Campaneris... "and Smith makes plays that Cammy could never have made."

Padre broadcaster and former Yankee Infielder Jerry Coleman: "I played nine years alongside a shortstop named Phil Rizzuto with the Yankees. You can't compare Ozzie to Rizzuto yet because Phil was great for many years but Ozzie has made plays this season that I have never seen other shortstops make. He's amazing."

Phillies Manager Danny Ozark: "Ozzie deserves the Rookie-of-the-Year award because of the outstanding job he's done at a difficult position and the difference he has made in his team."

As far as she can tell, the future looks bright and sees national Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women competition a realistic goal

Chargers Seek 5th in a Row From K.C. Chiefs Sunday at 10

The San Diego Chargers hope they can carry their ability and luck with them when they meet the Kansas City Chiefs Sunday at 10 a.m. (PST) in Arrowhead Stadium.

The two fought an amazing 75 minutes of unusual football before the Chargers won it 29-23 in San Diego November 12.

The Chargers have won the last 4 games in Arrowhead but none carried the good fortune of the play that won for the Chargers when Dan Fouts threw a 14-yard pass to John Jefferson for the winning score in the final second of overtime. It broke the Chiefs' 6-game winning streak.

The Chargers defeated the Minnesota Vikings 13-7 last week in Bloomington to improve their record to 6-6. It was the 4th win in a row for the Chargers since a 31-14 loss at Detroit October 22.

In the AFC West the Chargers trail Oakland and Denver, each 8-4, by two games with four remaining and are tied for third place with Seattle. The Chargers still are in contention for a division championship and wildcard berth in the playoffs.

"There are a lot of teams in the running in the AFC," said Chargers coach Don Coryell. "There are about 14 teams taking a shot. We still have a chance."

The Chargers and Vikings played on the coldest Sunday of the 1978 NFL season. The temperature never got above 17 degrees in Bloomington with the wind-chill factor at zero and the game being played amid snow flurries. "Weather was no problem," said Coryell. "It was kind of nice for a change to be in snow."

Chargers cornerback Hal

Stringert is Hawaiian. He is used to warm climate. But Stringert experienced his best game of the season in Minnesota, making seven unassisted tackles, intercepting a pass, and recovering a fumble. "It was 85 degrees all day and the sun was shining," Stringert joked.

Running back Don Woods started against Minnesota because of a hamstring muscle that was to limit Mitchell's participation. Woods responded with 23 carries for 76 yards, in 24 carries against Los Angeles in San Diego Stadium October 12, 1975.

The 76 yards moved Woods into a tie with Keith Lincoln for second place among all-time Chargers rushers. Each has 2,698 yards. The leader is Paul Lowe, who gained 4,963 from 1961-68.

Here's how the Chargers rank individually in the American Conference:

—Quarterback Dan Fouts is second to Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw (79.5) with a 76.6 pass rating.

—Fouts is tied with Cleveland's Brian Sipe with 15 touchdown passes, second to Bradshaw's 19. (Fouts is tied for fourth in the NFL). Dallas' Roger Staubach has 20 and Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton 16.

—Artie Owens is second with a 26.2 average for kickoff returns.

—Mike Fuller is fifth with an 11.0 punt return average.

—Lyndell Mitchell is fifth with 39 pass receptions.

—Rolf Benirschke is fifth in kick scoring with 59 points.

—Mitchell is eighth with 672 yards rushing.

—John Jefferson is eighth with 35 pass receptions and is tied for second in the AFC and the NFL with 8 touchdowns pass receptions with Oakland's Dave Casper and Miami's Nat Moore. Pittsburgh's Lynn Swann leads the AFC and the NFL with 9.

—The Chargers are first with 40 quarterback sacks. (Detroit leads the NFL with 42).

—The Chargers are third in total offense, ninth in rushing, and second in passing.

—The Chargers are sixth in total defense, fifth in rushing, and sixth in passing.

Ima Lulu Seeks Applications Open

Ima Lulu will attempt to become only the third horse in Western Harness Racing history to capture the $100,000 American Trotting Classic 2 straight years when she battles 1976 winner, Keystone Pioneer and a host of top trotters Friday at Hollywood Park in the mile and one-eighth event for diagonal gaited high-steppers.

Scott Frost won the first two Trotting Classics held at Hollywood in 1955-56 with Joe O'Brien in the bike and Savior duplicated that feat in 1974-75 with Jim Dennis driving. Dagan and Fresh Yankee also were two-time winners, as each of them alternated as victor from 1969 through 1972.

O'Brien, who is expected to be on hand for the classic to handle his charge, leads the victory parade with a half-dozen Trotting Classics to his credit.

Flagstaff Site Of USIU Opener

United States International University's varsity basketball team opens its 1978-79 season Saturday at 7 p.m., in Flagstaff, against Northern Arizona. U.SIU follows with more games away, to San Luis Obispo, Thousand Oaks, Orange and Los Angeles. The first USIU home game, to be played in the Mira Mesa high school gym, is at 8 p.m., Tuesday, December 12, against Biola College.

Michael D. McDonald, in his first year as head varsity basketball coach after serving USIU as assistant varsity coach and head freshman coach since 1973, starts his 15-member squad on its 28-game season against teams which constitute "one of the most difficult schedules USIU has had in many seasons."

Hoop Season Opens Friday For Aztecs 5

2 starting spots are as yet undecided as Aztec Coach Tim Vezie leads the San Diego State basketball team into their season opener Friday in Eugene, Oregon to play the U. of Oregon at 8:05 p.m., PST.

The game will be televised live on Channel 8 in a simulcast with KFMB Radio.

"We still have strong competition at the point guard and power forward spots," says Vezie, who welcomes back starters at the other 3 positions. Tony Gwynn, a sophomore, and JC transfer Howard Avery are battling at the point. At forward, the tussle is between transfer Marcus Hamilton (6-7 sophomore) and Presnell Gilbert (6-5 junior).

Holding down starting positions from last year's 19-9 team are center Steve Malovic, forward Kim Goetz, and guard Mike Dodd. All 3 were double-figure scorers a year ago.

Oregon will be playing its first game under new coach, Jim Haney. Last year's team was 16-11, but Haney promises that his crew will be running a more wide-open offense than the low-scoring quintet of the past.

The Ducks return 4 starters and top bench talent. The returnees include their top seven scorers, though none averaged in double figures.

"We have to cut down on foolish errors," said Haney after his intrasquad game. "We did show better knowledge of getting into our offense. We did a better job of recognizing the situation but we did not get good enough execution."

Like Aztecs, the Ducks are undecided on their starters. Dan Hartshorne, a 6-10 center who averaged 9.3 points last year is entrenched. The forwards will be either Kelvin Small, Mike Clark, or Felton Sealey. Sealey is also a possibility at guard where they also return Rob Closs and Stu Lyon.

Williams Aids Boys' Club Hoop Program

A clinic by San Diego Clippers rookie Freeman Williams will kick off this season's Golden State boys' basketball program, with registration now underway at the Encanto Boys' Club.

The clinic, set for 6-7:30 p.m. Tuesday, is open to all boys aged 11-14. The Golden State program will be divided into three divisions: a (14 year olds), b (13 year olds) and c (12 and under).

All-Stars in each division will participate in the program's state tournament, to be held in L.A. and S.D. at the end of March.

Boys can register at the Boy's Club, 6785 Imperial ave., now through the night of the clinic.

Williams, a first-round draft choice in last spring's NBA draft, led the nation's collegiate scorers each of the past two seasons while playing for Portland State. Only Pete Maravich scored more points in his college career than did Williams.

Art Curry, Encanto Boy's Club director, is in charge of the program. The phone, 263-6407.

Three-Game Test Faced By Clippers This Week

A demanding three game in three days schedule faces the San Diego Clippers this week end.

It is the third time in the young season that the Clippers have played three consecutive days.

Only one of those games is at home and that comes Sunday against the Boston Celtics at the Sports Arena at 7:05 p.m. The Clippers are on the road Friday against the Philadelphia 76ers and Saturday against the Kansas City Kings before returning home to battle the Celtics.

Boston comes to San Diego with Dave Cowens, their perpetual motion center, cast in the role of player-coach. He's the Celtics' top scorer at 17 points per game.

The Celtics also have veteran all-star guard JoJo White and have been getting solid efforts from guard Nate (Tiny) Archibald and forward Billy Knight, both former Buffalo Braves who came to the Celtics as part of the trade involved in the franchise shift between Irv Levin and John Y. Brown.

This is the first time the two clubs have met since Levin traded the Boston franchise for the Buffalo franchise and then switched the Braves to San Diego.

The Clippers rely heavily on

Membership Rules Changed by DOA

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The Disabled Officers Assn. (DOA), a veterans' organization established in 1919 at Walter Reed Army Hospital, has revised its eligibility requirements for membership in that organization. The change removed the requirement that in order to be eligible for membership the officer must be retired.

In announcing this very significant change, Captain Dale G. Ackerson, USAF (Ret.), the newly elected National Commander, noted that there was a very large segment of the disabled officer population of all the services, both on active duty as well as those who have returned to civilian life, who have little voice in those affairs that directly concern them. By taking this step, any officer, warrant or flight officer with a properly adjudicated, service-connected disability of whatever percentage, is eligible to the DOA.

The Auxiliary of the Assn. is open to the spouse, dependents and the next of kin to the member.

DOA's address is 1612 "K" st. N.W., Washington, DC 20006, or telephone 202/331-1034.

Restaurant Plans Birthday Event

Ten Downing Street Restaurant will celebrate the 104th birthday of Winston Churchill on Wednesday, November 29, from 3-7 p.m. At both its North County and Downtown locations, owner Joe Cauci has announced.

Food for the occasion will be prepared under the supervision of Brian Collings, a former chef for the Queen of England.

The restaurant will serve specially prepared hors d'oeuvres, a gigantic birthday cake, special cocktail prices and free cigars.

Churchill, born in 1874 in Blenheim Palace in England, was a soldier, journalist, painter, orator, and statesman. As a soldier, Churchill was the first in England to become deeply aware of the role tanks and planes were to play in modern war.

Claims Sugar, Molasses, Honey Harm Teeth Like Refined Sugar

Raw sugar, molasses and honey — the so-called "natural" sugars thought by some health advocates to be harmless to teeth — are just as capable of producing decay as refined sugar, according to the California Dental Association (CDA).

Scientific analysis of the properties of various food reveals that a piece of caramel candy has a total sugar content of 64 percent, while the sugar content of honey is almost 73 percent. Even though the sugars in the two products vary slightly, the stickiness makes them similar when it comes to tooth decay.

Munching on a granola bar sweetened with honey can set the stage for dental decay (caries) just as surely as a candy bar.

Another example is bread and butter with honey, which has a greater sugar content than sweet cookies. The total sugar content of a juicy orange, on the other hand, is considerably less than either the bread and honey or the cookies.

"Hidden" sugar, found in foods ranging from hot dogs to canned soups, is another area of concern to dentists. Consumers should be aware of the fact that obviously sweet foods, such as candy and pastry, are no longer the only culprits. A survey of the list of ingredients found on convenience food labels will reveal that sugar is incorporated into such unlikely foods as peanut butter, ketchup and pork sausage links.

In addition, ingredients are listed with the major ingredient appearing first and subsequent ingredients listed in order of their quantity. In a jar of jelly, for example, if sugar is the second listed ingredient and fruit the third, there is more sugar than fruit in the product.

CDA recommends getting into the habit of reading labels on all packaged foods to determine the relative amount of sugar "hiding" in the product as compared to other ingredients.

Fortunately, the urge for sweets can be met without resorting to foods heavily laced with decay-producing sugars. Of the many types of sugars, fructose, which is found in fresh fruits, and lactose, which is found in milk, are healthier for teeth.

In-between meal snacks such as an apple, banana or a glass of milk are nutritious and satisfying substitutes for sugar-laden foods, CDA says.

Such snacks, used in addition to meals selected from the Four Food Groups—milk, meat, vegetables and fruits, and breads and cereals—play an important role in dental health and total nutrition.

Aztecs Seek to Extend Home Winning Streak

Though there is no longer a Holiday Bowl to shoot for and a losing record is an inevitability, the San Diego State Aztecs have a winning streak to preserve as they entertain the U. of New Mexico this Saturday at San Diego Stadium.

Coach Claude Gilbert's forces have won 15 straight games in Mission Valley dating back to a loss to Brigham Young in 1967.

It has been on the road where the Aztecs have failed this year, losing all six of their excursions. In San Diego, however, they have won all three of their tries this fall, over Fresno State, Pacific, and Colorado State.

New Mexico, which has won three of its four road games, comes to town sporting a 7-4 record, 3-2 in the WAC. Last week they defeated Pacific, 44-6, while the Aztecs were losing in Miami, 16-14.

The Lobos boast what is perhaps the league's most skillful backfield in quarterback Brad Wright, fullback Mike Williams, and tailback Mike Carter.

Wright, the WAC's total offense leader, is an accomplished passer (1,755 yards) and runner (417 yards). Williams, meanwhile, became the league's all-time rushing king by gaining 81 yards against Pacific, surpassing Woody Green of Arizona State. Should he gain 138 yards against the Aztecs in the last game of his career, he will become only the seventh player in NCAA history to gain 4000 yards rushing in his career.

The Aztecs are expected to challenge the Lobos' pass defense which features All-American safety Max Hudspeth and the WAC interception leader (with seven), Doug Smith.

Sophomore Mark Halda, ranked third nationally in passing, will be at quarterback. He has thrown for 1,775 yards and 10 touchdowns. Fullback Phil DuBois (500 yards) leads the Aztec ground game. Exciting tailback Marcus Jennings, who rushed for 179 yards in his last San Diego appearance, was injured against Miami but should return this week.

The game will be broadcast live on KFMB (Radio 76), beginning at 7:10 p.m., with Ted Leitner and Tom Nettles calling the action.

Outdoors & Travel

By E. L. "Buck" Rogers

Last winter I spent a week at the end of the earth.

The place is called Tierra del Fuego, which means "land of fire," so named because Indian campfires were the first thing early explorers saw when their sailing ships hove to in these waters.

Tierra del Fuego is a "fur" piece off, Buenos Aires, for instance, is an overnight flight by Braniff jet from New York City, and this southernmost chunk of tierra firma lies 1500 miles south of the Argentina capital. It's so far off the beaten path that was my first visit to the area, but after what I found it won't be my last.

Some folks go to Tierra del Fuego just to say they've been there, and a few others pause here on their way to explore the frozen wastes of Antarctica. But my principal reason for making the trip was to determine if the stories about the trout fishing were true or simply tall tales. And, you know what? The fishing was better than anticipated, and that's saying a lot.

In the company of a fellow Missourian, Lloyd Saulsbury, and crack fishing guide, Laddie Buchanan, we explored this island from its windswept northern shore to the forested mountain slopes overlooking the Claro, Pipo, and mouths of smaller rivers which empty into the big Lake Fagnano. And, the following are some of the conclusions reached.

The Rio Grande, which flows through big sheep ranches of the northern part of the island, probably offers the best brown trout fishing in the world. These are searun browns, which leap like rainbows and grow to an unusually large size. In this big river, fish averaged four or five pounds, and fish in the 15- to 20-pound class are not uncommon. Hooking a 20-pound brown trout and landing one, however, are two different things. All of us lost monster trout, but Laddie is the only one who landed a fish exceeding 12 pounds.

The other streams hold large rainbows and brook trout, and from our experience, the Rio Claro could hold the next world record brookie. In one afternoon of fishing, for instance, we landed several brooks in the eight-pound category, and I lost a lunker which might have made angling history. From every standpoint, the fishing in Tierra del Fuego exceeds the claims made for it.

But the wind here, especially in the Rio Grande area, separate the men from the boys when it comes to fly fishing. Big rods are recommended, shooting heads are a must, and leaders should test a minimum of 12 pounds. Even for experienced anglers, fishing the Rio Grande will provide a challenge. Novices should venture out only on calm days or use a spinning rod.

Tierra del Fuego has two centers of civilization. Rio Grande has a population of 15,000 and is the gateway for air traffic from the north. Although windswept and barren, this city is perhaps the best headquarters for fishing on the island. Ushuaia, the world's southernmost city, is more picturesque and might be considered the tourism center of the island. It can be reached by a short flight from Rio Grande, or by a half-day drive through the mountain by rental car.

The season for Tierra del Fuego is December through March with the best fishing occurring in January, February and early March. This is mid-summer here, but the wind always blows and the weather is cool.

In this respect, the name is misleading. It never gets very warm in the "land of fire."

Volunteer Director Named at ECV Hospital

Jane Bender of La Mesa has been named fulltime director of volunteer services at El Cajon Valley Hospital.

Mrs. Bender and her husband, an El Cajon attorney, have lived in the area for eight years. She has been a volunteer and gift shop manager at the Home of Guiding Hands and a Grossmont Hospital volunteer.

A native of Kansas, Mrs. Bender has a B.A. degree in interior design from the University of Kansas in Lawrence, Kansas. She has taught art to preschoolers, given classes in crafts and interior design, and done volunteer work for the American Cancer Society.

Mrs. Bender said she plans to develop a "professional, well-organized" volunteer program for the hospital. She is recruiting volunteers who are interested in helping with patient care, hospitality services, art and photography programs, sewing projects, library services, tours for young people, and gift shop and secretarial work.

Three New Dept. Heads Named at G'Mont Hospital

James Mom and Robert Fox have joined the Grossmont Hospital staff while Jalinda Bastian has been promoted.

Mom has been hired as chief radiologic technologist to succeed Herb Ferguson, who was named to the new position of quality control supervisor. Fox will be coordinator of the mental rehabilitation unit's day treatment program, and Bastian has been named director of speech pathology.

Mom, with 13 years of x-ray administration experience, came to San Diego from UCLA where he worked as the management services officer in diagnostic radiology for the past two years. He is regional director for the American Society of Radiologic Technologists.

Fox spent six years with the Department of Mental Health in Orange County as director of a day treatment program that he started, supervised, and administered.

The day treatment program will begin in early November. The objectives are to provide a therapeutic experience as a follow-up for inpatients and as an alternative to hospitalization for others. The program will use a three-fold approach: (1) group therapy for dealing with personal problems and life situations, (2) occupational counseling, and (3) education about community resources.

Bastian has been a speech pathologist at Grossmont for a year. She had previously worked at the Speech-Hearing Neurosensory Center at Children's Hospital and Sharp Rehabilitation Center.

Riles Wins CSEA 'Award' For Textbook Printing

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson C. Riles has become the first recipient of the California State Employees' Association "Waste Maker Award."

The award was to be presented to Riles in his office Nov. 6 for his part in allowing private publishers to print school textbooks when the work could be done at a considerable savings by the state, according to CSEA General Manager Dan L. Western.

The "Waste Maker Award" was given to Riles as a result of a CSEA investigation into a 1972 law which permits the state to contract out to private publishers for the printing of textbooks. The law provides for a multiple selection procedure for elementary textbooks and other teaching materials.

The CSEA investigation shows that the law has created a proliferation of materials, thereby forcing the state to contract out and overspend an average $10 million annually on outside printing, Western said. CSEA contends the money could have been saved if the printing had been done in the state printing plant.

"Even though the award went to Riles, CSEA wants it to be shared by the state Department of Education and members of the state Legislature for their part in the textbook printing decision," Western said.

Heavier Patrol On Major Roads

The California Highway Patrol will concentrate its uniformed personnel on major highways starting January 1 to increase the visibility and impact of enforcement officers.

The shift means that lightly traveled county roads will not be routinely patrolled, but Commissioner Glen Craig emphasized the CHP will continue to investigate all accidents wherever they occur.

Craig said the new program is tied to 1979 departmental goals:

1. Increased presence of patrol units on major highways.
2. Reduction of reportable accidents of major highways.

The CHP has received an increasing number of citizen inquiries about the lack of patrol vehicles on major routes.

Beat Rush Now; Register Bikes

California's million-plus bicyclists should register their bicycles as soon as possible to avoid the year-end rush, the Department of Motor Vehicles urged.

Current registration expires on December 31.

State law requires bicycles to be registered in those cities and counties that have a bike ordinance.

"DMV's sole responsibility in the program is to supply licenses and registration stickers to those municipalities with bike ordinances. Eighty-five per cent of the State's cities and counties participate in the bicycle registration program," Chuck Campana, manager of the Bicycle Renewal Program said.

Since the law went into effect in 1974, the department has furnished local agencies with almost two million stickers. The L.G. and S.V. Fire Departments formerly registered bikes but quit about 18 months ago.

Local bikers are referred to S.D. City Fire Stations for stickers. Renewal stickers are valid for 3 years.

According to Campana, the registration program has been a deterrent in the theft of bicycles. "Many law enforcement agencies report bikes with registration stickers that have been stolen and later recovered have a much better chance of being returned to their rightful owner," he added.

Local agencies who issue bike registration stickers must by law record the owner's name, address, license number, serial number, make, type, and model of the bicycle.

G'Mont Rehab Unit Gets New Nursing Coordinator

The Grossmont Hospital physical rehabilitation unit has a new coordinator of nursing, Doreen Casuto, R.N., joined the staff to take over from Karina Klauber, R.N., who has chosen a lead nursing position in the physical rehabilitation unit.

Mrs. Casuto, who has over seven years experience in nursing, was most recently with the 1100 bed Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis where she set up a new physical rehab unit.

She has been a consultant to several hospitals in setting up new physical rehabilitation units, and has been an outpatient counselor.

She has been active with the Association of Rehabilitation Nurses, The American Congress of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation, and Creative Living, an Ohio organization which developed housing facilities for severely disabled persons. She is looking forward to working in a similar project locally.

A graduate of the American University School of Nursing in Washington, D.C., she has served in many locations, including a position as public health nurse in Maryland, and rehab nursing instructor at Ohio State University.

While her husband, Morris, utilized a Fulbright Scholarship in Southeast Asia, she taught English there.

Shopping Sprees Offered To Aid COMBO's Fund Drive

4 shopping sprees with a total value of more than $4,000 will be sold to the highest bidder at COMBO's December 2 Television Auction.

San Diegans can phone in bids on furnishings from Wickes Furniture Stores or Levitz Furniture. A $1,000 gift certificate good at any of University Towne Centre's 132 stores or a $853 shopping package featuring gift certificates from 20 North County businesses will also be offered.

Proceeds from the evening's sales of these and 500 other items will be shared by the 17 cultural groups that are members of COMBO, the Combined Arts and Education Council of San Diego County. Last year's fund raiser grossed more than $150,000.

For the fourth consecutive year, the auction will be broadcast by 3 San Diego television stations, Channels 8, 10 and 39.

Bids are placed by calling COMBO auction headquarters in Golden Hall in the Convention and Performing Arts Center at 570-1500. Volunteer operators will take bids and contact the successful bidders.

Health Care Costs Could Bring Prop. 13-Like Cost Controls

Dr. Henry W. Zaretsky, Director of the Office of Statewide Health Planning and Development, has urged consumers, providers, public Health Systems Agencies, and the hospital industry to "bite the bullet" on health care costs, to avoid the possibility of a Proposition 13-style cost containment initiative.

His remarks were made to the governing body of the Health Systems Agency of San Diego and Imperial Counties (HSA) at its Oct. 27 meeting in Holtville.

Referring to Proposition 13, Zaretsky said, "The same thing could happen with respect to health care. The costs are going up. Yet our health is not improving significantly, while we're spending more and more money. Eventually people will get so fed up that, either through the legislature or through a voter initiative, a meat-axe will come down. And we'll have cost containment."

"But we'll have the same kind of cost containment we're having with Proposition 13. We might contain costs, but we might lose some needed services."

Zaretsky stressed the importance of both the public and the health care industry working together to create cost-effective health planning, and said the state would support these efforts.

"We want to make health planning in California a meaningful partnership between the HSAs and the Office of Statewide Health Planning and Development. We'd like to make our policies — at the State level — reflect the needs of the local communities as expressed by the HSAs."

Zaretsky said local citizens working with the HSA would have a difficult task ahead of them in setting limits on health care spending. "This is going to force some very tough priority setting, because, when you're faced with a dollar limit, you really have to be very careful about how you allocate those dollars. When you don't think of the dollars, it's much easier to say 'More is better.'"

"More isn't always better. Sometimes less is better. And sometimes less of one thing and more of something else is better. We have to recognize that to get more of something we really need, maybe we have to take away from something we don't need. And that's going to be very tough. We're all going to have to bite the bullet. I don't think planning is going to be effective until we can do that."

Zaretsky urged the HSA to encourage innovative health services, such as Health Maintenance Organizations (HMOs), mergers and consolidations, capacity reductions, and prevention programs. He said planners should work with the health care industry to try to "re-direct capital investment to other, more productive uses."

Cold to Cause Bills For Fuel to Skyrocket

The cold rainy weather the last few weeks caused natural gas consumption to soar throughout the greater San Diego area.

San Diego Gas & Electric said that customers seeking relief from the chill used 197 million cubic feet of gas on Saturday after the storm settled in—more than twice as much as the 92 million cubic feet used in mid-week.

Consumption dropped off to 179 million cubic feet Sunday, but climbed back to 194 million yesterday.

SDG&E said that the price for comfort during the cold snap may come as a shock to some customers, especially those living in uninsulated homes that do not hold the heat well.

Inflation and higher fuel costs have driven up both gas and electric rates since the 1973-74 winter—the last one with normal temperatures.

Residents have been spared the full impact of the higher rates during the last three winters because they were much warmer than normal and residents required less gas to heat their homes.

SDGE Asks Utility Hike

The San Diego Gas and Electric Company appealed to the Public Utilities Commission last week to allow them to pass the loss of the Sundesert nuclear plant on to their consumers.

Ralph R. Higgins, SDG&E economist, said the loss of the Sundesert project of 10 times larger than any previously cancelled project and the only way to recover the costs was to include it in a rate increase to the consumer.

Higgins argued that the cancelled project should be viewed as a plant held for future use and thus costs of the engineering and equipment contracts could be passed on to the consumer.

2,200 Acres Near Cuyamaca To Burn in Fire Research

Recent devastating brush fires in Los Angeles County are a grim reminder of the ever present threat of fire disaster. Several cooperating agencies within San Diego County are working on a research project that could reduce the size of conflagration fires.

The project area, termed the Laguna-Morena Demonstration Area, covers about 200 square miles of San Diego County with Cuyamaca State Park on the north and Morongo Dam to the south. Research into the management of the chaparral is designed to reduce the buildup of large amounts of brush in the mountains.

Several methods of managing the brush growth are being tested and analyzed. Included are mechanical discing methods, ball and chain crushing of the brush, prescribed burning, utilization of the well publicized "Goat Project", (goats to eat the brush), and testing of a wood densifier that pulverizes the brush and makes bricks out of it.

After the disastrous brush-fire season of 1970, a task force was formed to identify the many factors contributing to the wildfire problem in California and to recommend ways of solving the problem. One of the recommendations of the task force was to begin a cooperative program among land management and fire control agencies for the development and demonstration of currently available fuel management techniques.

Representatives of the Cleveland National Forest, California Department of Forestry

(CDF), University of California, Bureau of Land Management and Indian Affairs, California Department of Fish and Game, State Parks, Soil Conservation District, San Diego County, Pacific Southwest Experiment Station and private land owners have joined together to form the largest wildland fuels management demonstration area in the nation.

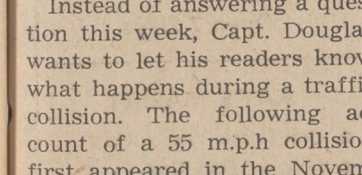

A significant part of the research will be attempted this winter with the burning of approximately 2,200 acres of brush undergrowth in the vicinity of Cuyamaca State Park. Dr. Harold Biswell, under contract to the state park, will conduct the prescribed burning phase of the project.

Some additional benefits that will be realized by removing the heavy brush growth will be to provide a corridor, for deer and other wildlife in the state park, that will improve grazing grounds.

The objectives of the demonstration area are:

1. To reduce the catastrophic potential of wildfire.
2. To involve all government agencies, private groups, and persons who have an interest in wildland fuel management.
3. To demonstrate proven chaparral management techniques on an interagency basis and to a concerned public.
4. To monitor the results of large scale wildland fuel management techniques on the basis of their environmental impacts.
5. To develop guidelines for wildland fuel management that can be used beyond the boundaries of the Laguna-Morena area.
6. To foster the development of new techniques concerning wildland fuel management.

Ask Your C.H.P.

C.H.P. Capt. C. M. Douglas

Instead of answering a question this week, Capt. Douglas wants to let his readers know what happens during a traffic collision. The following account of a 55 m.p.h. collision first appeared in the November 1967 issue of THE HIGHWAY PATROLMAN magazine.

FIRST ONE-TENTH OF A SECOND — The front bumper and grill collapse.

SECOND TENTH OF A SECOND — Your hood rises and strikes the windshield. Fenders begin wrapping themselves around the object with which you've collided. You slam on your brakes, stopping the car, but your body is still moving at 55 m.p.h. You stiffen your legs for the jolt but they both snap at the knee.

THIRD TENTH OF A SECOND — Your body catapults from the seat. Your broken knees ram into the dashboard. The steering wheel begins to collapse, and the steering column drives toward your chest.

FOURTH TENTH OF A SECOND — Two feet of the car's front end are totally demolished, but the rear end is still traveling at 35 m.p.h. Your body is still moving forward at 55 m.p.h.

FIFTH TENTH OF A SECOND — The steering column rams through your chest cavity, and blood rushes into your lungs.

SIXTH TENTH OF A SECOND — Your feet are ripped out of your shoes from the built-up force of the impact. The brake pedal shears off, the car frame buckles in the middle and your head smashes into the windshield.

SEVENTH TENTH OF A SECOND — The whole car body is distorted. Hinges rip off, doors spring open, the seat flails loose, striking you from behind. But it really doesn't matter. You're already dead. You don't get to experience the final three-tenths of this one second — it doesn't take long to die.

Farm Bureau Sets December Meeting

Pesticide regulation and water development are among the major topics to be debated at the 60th annual meeting of the California Farm Bureau Federation in Anaheim December 3 through December 6.

Delegates from the state's 52 county Farm Bureaus will gather to adopt policy to direct the state organization for 1979. Nearly 1,000 persons are expected to attend.

Policy resolutions in the general areas of agricultural economics, farm labor, natural resources, taxation and education will be on the agenda along with items specifically about the State Water Project, foreign investment in agriculture and government spending limitations.

Delegates to last year's meeting adopted policy relating to taxation which resulted in the Farm Bureau Federation being the major statewide organization that supported Proposition 13.

One of the highlights of the four-day convention at the Disneyland Hotel will be the presentation of the Distinguished Service to Agriculture award. In addition, the organization will recognize the outstanding agricultural news reporter, crown a 1979 Miss California Farm Bureau and elect half the federation's board of directors.

The federation is California's largest farm organization with more than 85,000 member families.

Caltrans, Amtrak To Share Cost of SD-LA Train Trip

State Transportation Director Adriana Gianturco has announced a new agreement between Caltrans and Amtrak to subsidize the early-morning-evening "San Diegan" train. Caltrans had been the sole supporter of this service since August when its joint participation with the County of Los Angeles terminated.

In addition the director noted that the "San Diegan" has a new schedule: 5:15 a.m. northbound departure from San Diego and 4:30 p.m. southbound departure from Los Angeles, six days per week. The new departure time will allow passengers to arrive in Los Angeles earlier in the morning.

Amtrak currently operates five other round-trip trains between Los Angeles and San Diego. Two of these are also partially supported by Caltrans.

"The 'San Diegans' are Amtrak's most heavily used lines," said Gianturco, "and have continued to increase in ridership rivaling lines on the densely populated eastern seaboard."

Screen Extras Guild Opens SD Office for Local Productions

The Screen Extras Guild (SEG) has opened an office in San Diego, ending a two-year quest by the SD Chamber of Commerce, the City of San Diego and local union officials.

Announcement of the new SEG office was made by Jacqueline Walters, executive secretary for the union in San Diego. Mrs. Walters also serves as local executive secretary for the American Federation of Television & Radio Artists (AFTRA) and the Screen Actors Guild (SAG). Establishing San Diego as a SEG zone with its own office means that production companies filming here can hire San Diego extras. In the past, extras had to be transported from Los Angeles, greatly increasing the cost of filming on location in San Diego.

A San Diego office of SEG has been a goal of the San Diego Motion Picture & Television Bureau since its inception two years ago. The bureau, a part of the Chamber of Commerce, is funded by the City of San Diego.

A now-defunct Warner Brothers television series, "Harry O," blamed the inability to hire extras in San Diego as the principal reason it left here in 1975. Later cancelled, the show chronically ran over budget in San Diego when extras from Los Angeles had to be fed and housed here at the production company's expense.

The SEG's national membership voted last year to establish San Diego as a zone. This mandate now has been implemented with the opening of the local office, at 3045 Rosecrans St., Suite 308, San Diego. The telephone number is 222-6059.

YOU AND YOUR PET

By Robert L. Stear, D.V.M.

Skin and Haircoat Care

Today's domesticated pets, whether in city or suburban surroundings, encounter health hazards almost unknown to their wildlife ancestors. These hazards include concentrations of various parasites, diet deficiencies, restricted exercise and even insufficient basic grooming. Two common results are skin and haircoat problems.

To the average dog owner, a dog with skin trouble has "mange." Many dogs to have mange, but veterinarians tell us that at least an equal number have dermatitis.

Both external and internal parasites frequently are the culprits causing skin and haircoat problems. Fleas, ticks, and a variety of mange mites, if allowed to live on the skin, cause severe itching and inflammation. Flea-bitten dogs itch, and scratching of the skin results in damage that eventually becomes dermatitis. Internal parasites such as various kinds of worms can result in haircoat problems.

Diet Deficiencies
Skin trouble and dull haircoat may also result from such problems as vitamin or fatty acid deficiencies, and overfeeding of carbohydrates (cereals). There are a number of good, commercial dog foods such as ALPO which provide the recommended requirements of vitamins and minerals. Your dog may need a change of diet. An examination by a veterinarian can provide the answer.

One basic way of safeguarding your dog against certain skin trouble is by keeping his coat clean. Not by frequent bathing but by brushing, several times a week. This varies by breed. Short-haired breeds should be brushed. Terrier types need periodic plucking to remove dead-hair tufts, with brushing and combing between pluckings. Longer-coated dogs usually are carefully combed first, then brushed. Why is this important? Because pesky bugs don't like clean haircoats.

Exercise also helps. It stimulates the circulation, tones up the skin and other organs, and it is a good conditioner for both you and your pet.

Periodic Health Checks
A periodic check up by the veterinarian is the best way to avoid serious trouble. Professional examinations often reveal problems which could become serious if neglected. "Look alike" skin problems in different dogs could be due to

Census Survey To Profile Voter, Non-Voter

Did you vote on November 7? Were you registered but did not vote?

The Bureau of the Census will ask these and other questions about voting in the 1978 elections in a sample of households in the area this week.

C. Michael Long, Director of the Bureau's Regional Office in Los Angeles, stressed that no questions will be asked about party affiliation or for whom a person voted. The survey will provide a profile of the typical American voter and non-voter: age, sex, residence, education, labor force status, and family income.

These voting questions are in addition to the usual ones asked in the monthly survey on employment and unemployment conducted nationwide by the Bureau for the U.S. Department of Labor.

Results of the monthly employment survey provide data on conditions in the labor force, prime indicators of the economic health of the country. For example, in September the survey indicated that of the 100.9 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 94.9 million were employed. The Nation's unemployment rate was 6.0 percent, virtually unchanged from 5.9 percent in August.
